Foreword

A group of harrassed individuals sat in the MESSENGER room. The sag of their shoulders, the circles under their eyes, the furrows in their brows plainly identified them as the MESSENGER staff trying to decide how to begin to get this volume ready for publication. The editor-in-chief sat, elbows on desk, holding her head with both hands. Her unseeing stare was directed at the open door. Suddenly she jumped and brought her eyes to a focus; her mouth dropped open. There, floating gently through the door, was the head of a bull dog! Transfixed, she saw the head disappear, only to be replaced by the dog's hind quarters and a stump of a tail! As the hind legs touched the floor, the head returned; then the front legs and shoulders fitted in between to complete the ghostly picture, like the last pieces of a jig-saw puzzle.

Now Butch, peer among mascots, was years ago with due ceremony interred and is notoriously no longer among the living. The figure in the doorway was nevertheless strangly like Butch. This fact, coupled with the above noted unorthodox method of materializing out of nothing, a section at a time, was enough to benumb even Sara's agile wit. The dog necessarily spoke first.

"Hello, folks!" he barked happily.

Everyone spoke at once, and until the resulting babble had died down, nothing intelligible could be heard. Finally Mimi Patton won the floor.

"Well, Butch, we are glad to meet you. For years we students have been hoarsely shouting about you, but we never dared hope we'd be able to know you in person! You look wonderful!—a bit translucent, perhaps, but otherwise much better than anyone would expect of you under the circumstances."

"Yes, you look great!" said J. B., all smiles and enthusiasm. He turned to the editor-in-chief. "Let me show him around. I'm on my way now to supervise our photographer in action. If Butch wants me to, I'll take him along when pictures are made of all the classes and activities. He'd probably like to bring himself up to date on D. H. S. life. How about it, Butch?"

"You bet!" exclaimed the dog. "What do you think I came for? Up there in dog heaven I made up my mind at the start that I was going to use my quota of canine ectoplasm, when I had enough stored up, to spend a year at my old alma mater. I intend to follow you students around just as long as my ectoplasm holds out. Do you mind?"

"Mind? Heavens no!" cried Sara as she lovingly patted his head. "Say, Mimi, I've got an idea! What do you think of letting our mascot solve our problem? He'll find out everything about the school year anyway. Why don't we let him tell the story in the 1947 MESSENGER? He can dictate to our reporters. What do you say, Staff?"

"Wonderful! A true brain-storm!" shouted everyone in unison.

"What do you say, Butch?" Mimi asked breathlessly.

Butch looked from one to another and smiled as only a bull dog can smile. "You couldn't please me better," he gently barked. "It will be my farewell gift to those I love."

—And so it came to pass.

Changing Classes

English Department

Seated: Frances Briggs; Marguerite M. Herr, Director. Standing: Bell Hampton, Maude Ratledge Oaks, Mary Suitt Hall, Vergil Ward, Mary Jane Edwards.

With a new pen and a ream of unlined paper, I prepared myself for a tour of the English Department. It was, I can tell you, better than any Cooke's tour I ever trailed along on!

Moving from class to class, I visited France during the Reign of Terror and wept with sympathy and admiration for Sidney Carton; I met the Duke of Venice and Portia and got in a few snarls at old Shylock; I travelled the road between Southwark and Canterbury; and, to see Macbeth, I entered the Globe Theater in the days of James I. Grrr! I'll be growling in my sleep at those "wierd sisters."

Returning with Ishmael from an eventful encounter with Moby Dick, I came to earth with a bang to learn the arts of letter and theme writing. Was that the end of my tour? No, indeed, there was first the journalism class where I inspired stacks of news, editorials, and features, and then at last the dramatics class. Move over, Alfred Lunt. Broadway, here I come!

Commercial Department

After delivering MESSENGER copy to Miss Cordle's typing staff, Mimi Patton absent-mindedly left me in the commercial office.

Indulging my insatiable curiosity, I followed Mr. Deeds as he entered a room full of enormous desks. I was amazed at the business-like way by which the second-year bookkeeping and office practice classes mastered their duties.

Upon entering a second room, I could so poorly refrain from laughing at the curious "crow feet" they call shorthand that I was forced to leave without dictating my correspondence. However, a steady pounding and occasional ringing sounds attracted me to a third room almost immediately. I entered a room full of typewriters, and, to secure a better view, I jumped up on a table. Crash! A full bottle of mimeographing ink and I—together we fell to the floor! Alas and alack! Will my beautiful coat ever be brown and white again?

Science Department

Strong whiffs of outlandish aromas stimulated my curiosity to the snooping point. I lost no time in trotting down the hall to Mr. Bell's chemical lab. What an eye opener! Students were busy performing miracles that we pups are incapable of describing.

Determination to indulge in further scientific research drove me to Miss Wilson's biology room. Ah, a place worth investigating, I thought, as I admired plants, tadpoles, and strange pictures. Up on a chair I jumped to see what was going on. That boy was dissecting a frog! It was very educational, but when I felt scientific eyes turned upon me speculatively, I silently stole away.

The physics lab is safer, I thought, as I walked up to Mr. Bunting's demonstration table. Safe? Instantly I was frightened out of two days' ectoplasm by a startling array of many colored sparks dancing wildly about me! What price knowledge!

Seated: Dorothy Wilson; Glenn W. Bunting, Director. Standing: Edward W. Bell, Blanche Bazannos, Edna H. Branch, James D. Shields, Ruby M. Williams. Not in picture: Nell Ross.

Social Science Department

"Ma" Gholson having been one of my best pals in the days when I, puppy-like, was always getting into mischief, everyone rightly expected her name to be among the first on my visiting list. Yes, sir! We reviewed many a youthful escapade before we got down to brass tacks about the courses offered in her department.

Well, it appears that the following courses are now available: Ancient and Medieval History, Modern European History, American History, Economics, Sociology, Commercial Geography, and American Government. Of these, American and Ancient History are required. The others are elective, half-year courses, with the exception of Modern European History, a full-year course.

Disappointed that I couldn't find my name in the new history book, I hurried off to pour my grievances into my friend Khris Mote's* sympathetic ear.

* Coach Kelley Mote's cocker spaniel.

Foreign Language Department

Offered in Durham High School are three foreign languages: two years of Spanish, two years of French, and four years of Latin.

For those who like the spicy South American life, there is the Spanish class. Enjoying the charming atmosphere there, I lingered long—until some boys, jealously resenting the attentions I was receiving from the senorita, invited me to depart. Seeking consolation and inspiration, I visited a Latin class, but I was not cheered. With the best intentions they translated for me the heartbreaking story of Ulysses' faithful dog. How could they know he is my best pal in dog heaven? Overcome, I rushed to French class where I hoped I would be soothed with beautiful French poetry. Bliss at last.

Math Department

Being in the usual mood for an observation tour, I strolled down the front corridor of my dear abode. After I had peered inquisitively into one of the rooms, I ceased my stealthy pace and stopped for investigation. What were those well-proportioned drawings on the blackboard? Since even we pups like pretty figures, I toddled in for investigation.

After I had been placed in a near-by seat, by dogged concentration I joined my fellow students and began earning my learning. However, the end of the period did not indicate the end of my mathematical interest. My restless mind gave me no peace 'till it had directed my paw-steps to a trigonometry class and finally an algebra class. Engrossed in the intellectnal, I was grieved that another appointment compelled me to leave.

Industrial Education Department

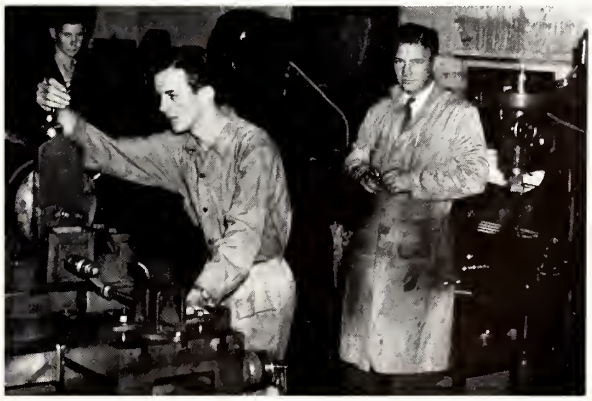
If only I could muster up the genius of a Whitman or a Sandburg! Maybe then I could describe adequately my impressions of the things I saw today. As it is, well, the minute I heard the buzz of those engines emanating from the basement of Durham High School, I had to dash down to see what was going on. This, I found, was the haven for boys who are inclined towards machine and woodshop training. These boys are given excellent equipment and are led by a most capable staff of teachers.

Work in the machine shop occupies three hours of a student's time each day and trains him in the general operation of machines found in an average shop and in the use of machinists' handtools. Other courses are offered in woodwork and elementary carpentry and in architectural and mechanical drawing.



Music Department

William Powell Twaddell and Lewis Enloe

"Music, when soft voices die,
Vibrates in the memory. . . ."

Shelley knew what he was talking about. Even now, as I sit in the MESSENGER room dictating my report of today's adventures, I find myself swaying gently in time to remembered melodies—beautiful melodies that kept me in ecstasy all day long.

Mr. Twaddell's chorus classes provide excellent training all the elements of good choral singing and serve as a source of talent for the Mixed Chorus and its specialized groups of singers who perform for the public. The band class, directed at the Carr Junior High School by Mr. Enloe, renders inspiring music at football games, parades, and programs presented in the high school auditorium. The fame of both groups has given rise to many invitations to "go on tour."

Physical Education Department

"Say, have you seen it? Doesn't Henry Bullock make the best looking cover boy you ever saw? They really featured our athletic department!"

Buzz, buzz, buzz! I had been sitting contentedly gnawing a bone and fussing with the big maroon bow around my neck; but when I heard all this, the hair along my spine bristled with sympathetic excitement and pride. I pricked up my ears and listened attentively:

"You bet!" came the answer. "See? They represented all of our sports—both girls' and boys'—and told a lot about the capable teachers who direct them. That's a good picture of Coach Emmerson, isn't it? I certainly did hate to see Lenoir-Rhyne College steal him from us at the end of first semester!"

"Yea, so did I. We have been lucky, though. Since Mr. Mote came in, he's been doing a beautiful job. He makes a swell coach."

The excited students moved on, but not before I had managed a peep at the Athletic Journal. Football, basketball, baseball, tennis, track, golf, volleyball, and swimming—all were featured. Eroof! I'm proud as a peacock!

Emily H. Loftin

The Library

Eager to visit again Alma Mater's center of thought, I bounded into the library. Miss E. H. Loftin, who greeted me with a cheerful smile, was supervising in such a fashion that the quiet atmosphere was ideal for concentration.

To avoid causing any disturbance, I quietly walked around gazing at a "king's supply" of books. During my speculation, I soon discovered the library's key to popularity. A wide variety of magazines on travel, science, and numerous other fields decked several shelves along with up-to-date newspapers which keep students informed on current events. Famous, popular, and educational books were everywhere.

Home Economics Department

While searching for a likely squirrel, I rammed head-on into the home economics cottage. The smell of good home cooking lured me into the kitchen, where I judiciously sampled the various plates. Delicious! My appetite being appeased somewhat, I decided to investigate the other rooms.

Frances Woolworth and Margaret Umberger

Ah, what a bee-hive of activity. Bevies of girls cleaning, sewing, practicing home nursing and child care, planning meals, serving, and doing all sorts of other things! This is probably what housewives dream of—a pack of capable Home Ec girls set loose in their houses.

Bible Department

"Good morning Mrs. Dobson," I barked as I entered the Bible room. After introducing myself, I lay down at the rear of the room; and soon the quiet and peaceful atmosphere enveloped me. The roll call ended and the student assigned the day's Scripture lesson moved forward and gave his interpretation. There followed a discussion led by Mrs. Dobson who is employed by the Durham Council of Churches to teach, in high school, courses taught objectively and without denominational prejudice. So absorbed I became in the story of Noah and the animals on his ark that the dismissing bell brought me back with a start.

Louise Dobson

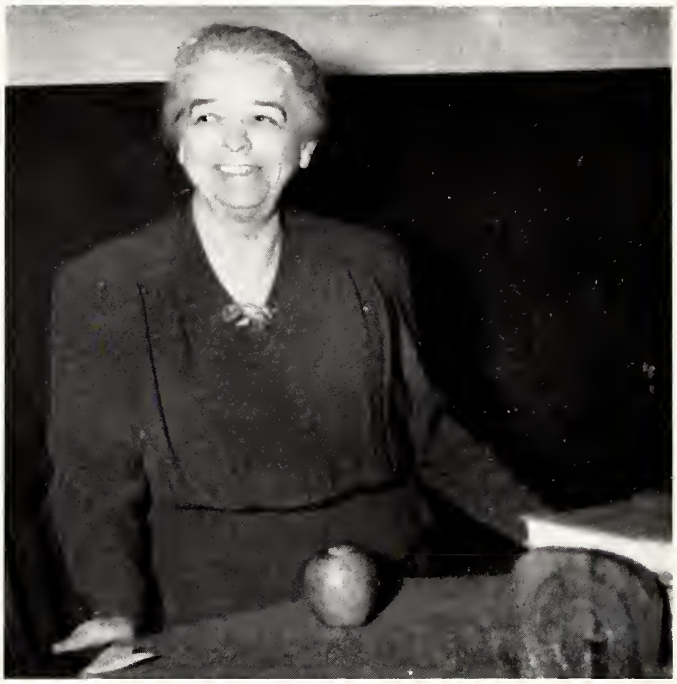
Art Department

I found the art room to be one of the most interesting that I entered. A great many students evidently find it so also, for the room was full.

Elsie Smith

Various types of art work were being done by the students. Some were molding clay while others were drawing and painting pictures, or printing attractive posters. On display were pictures done in charcoal, water colors, oils, chalk, pencil, and ink. Also some wood carvings and printed designs on cloth adorned the walls. Miss Smith, who was a student here when my son was mascot, won my doggy heart when she rescued me from "patriotic" students who were plotting to corner me with paint brushes dripping maroon and white. This was one room I left unmarshalled

Coöperative Department



Maude Rogers

The Coöp Class greeted me heartily as I joined them to perfect plans for the reunion to be held in the spring. This was an occasion when old times were in the limelight, and plans were made for a nobler, greater Coöp Class.

This organization was established in 1921 to enable a group of boys to continue their education along with employment. At least eight hundred boys have borne the name "Coöp" since Miss Maude Rogers, present leader of the class, Superintendent E. D. Pusey, and Mr. F. H. Hallenbeck combined plans for this class, still the only one of its kind in the state. Reminding us all of the three hundred former Coöps who served gallantly in our armed forces, twelve gold stars remain, mute evidence that some could not return.

Anne R. Llewellyn

Cafeteria

. . . And I thought dogs got hungrier than people! Ha!

The fourth period class approached its end. A strange restlessness, beginning in the corner farthest from the exit, became increasingly noticeable. Then the bell . . . and not a soul remained but teacher and me!

Too amazed to bark, I raced after my pals. Some I found outdoors in the cold lunch line, expertly balancing sandwiches and milk bottles while paying the cashier. Others I found in the cafeteria filling trays with piping hot food.

Under Mrs. Llewellyn's supervision, six cooks and a handy man supply these many students and teachers daily with appetizing and nutritious meals, and volunteers from the home economics class provide quick service during the two lunch periods.

Senior Class History

Let me, your bull-dog mascot, recall with you, the Senior Class, the days spent at your "Alma Mater."

There will always be memories of the trials and tribulations, the joyous good times and the hard work which made up your happy days at Durham High School.

There were dances which are so much a part of high school life and plays in which the ever-developing talents of youth was displayed so delightfully. The Junior-Senior socials were such great successes that all of you wish you could relive the thrilling moments. Remember those hilarious cabin parties and hay-rides? Stuffed with hot-dogs, doughnuts, and Pepsis, you sat around the fire and sang songs or acted out rollicking skits.

Right along side of those many entertainments went that thing called work. You realized the fact that work is inevitable and plunged head first into your studies as well as into the amusements of fun-loving youth.

Athletics is always a part of every student's life. The many games—basketball, and football—were so filled with spirit that even the losses were our gains. A large number of you earned those distinctive "D's" which will always be a souvenir of your athletic activities.

How proud you all were at the launching of your new constitution, which marked the beginning of a new and better student organization. When the constitution was overwhelmingly adopted, perhaps you all realized what a truly great thing had been accomplished.

But as always, "Tempus Fugits" and altogether too soon your school days were at an end. Graduation came and what an occasion! It didn't seem possible that your hearts could have been filled with so much joy and sorrow at the same time. However, all isn't lost because you have the Messenger. Any time, you can flip through its pages and relive every minute of your life at Durham High School.

To you all I wish the best of good luck.

Your loving mascot,

Butch Bulldog.

Junior Class

"All persons trying out for the Student Talent Show report to room 202 today at the activity period."

This call focused all eyes on the Junior Class, whose ability and enthusiasm brought success to all their undertakings. Their tryouts assembled so much talent that by April 18th they had a show with twenty-two "dog-gone" good acts to present to a packed house. My vocal chords and tail were absolutely exhausted with barking and wagging my approval when it was all over!

Then there was the Junior-Senior Prom, sponsored as always by the Juniors and financed by the proceeds from the talent program. Following the happy precedent set last year, the Seniors elected a king and queen, Henry Bullock and Colleen Collins, to rule the prom. Outcome: a merry time by all. Wall-flowers, male or female, were outmoded decorations, for the only floral decorations I met were the lovely carnations (Junior Class flower) that graced the refreshment table. How beautiful everything and everybody was! The Juniors' blue and gold blending with the Seniors' blue and white made up the artistic canopy overhead. Filmy dresses, soft lights, swishing skirts, beautiful girls, handsome boys, music and dancing! Ah, the great social event of the year!

Led by Louis Sasser, president; Mike Galifianakis, vice-president; Hazel Pennington, secretary; and Tom McDonald, treasurer, the Juniors, through their spirit of coöperation in all activities, have proved themselves. More power to you, rising Seniors!

Sophomore Class

These Sophomores really have plenty of spirit, and being a bulldog, that's what I like to see. Bill Harward, President; Nelson Jackson, Vice-President; Jimmie Johnson, Secretary; and Dickie Richardson, Treasurer, started them off on the right foot.

Just because they're youngest, they didn't allow their upper-classmen to out-shine them in any event. Their excellent ability was shown in diverse ways. The basketball and football teams made quite a good showing in intramurals and in games with junior high teams and high school junior varsities.

Frances Hauser, Jimmie Davis and Jack Cowan participated in dramatic productions, while Dannie Germino, Nelson Jackson entered oratorical contests. Extra-curricular activities were widely participated in, making Juniors and Seniors keep on their toes.

A spring social, for Sophomores only was given, and it was quite a success. I was amazed to see such a large number of people there. This class boasts 372 members.

This was the first class to elect their color, flower, and motto in the Sophomore year. The colors, red and white, and flower, the red rose, are favorites of mine.

By their Senior year, this class will have a complete record of all its activities as all events are being kept in permanent record form.

4A1 AND 4A2—First row: E. Atwater, B. Adams, B. Bobbitt, H. Babb, J. Andrews, S. Allen, R. Bayles, G. Bivins, E. Adams, M. Booth, N. Adcock. Second row: Mrs. Branch, N. Carlton, J. Clark, K. Coöperative Class

Chasing a great big ol' mean cat up the back stairs, I came across Room 217, the room that for twenty-five years has sheltered Coöps of many vocations. I entered the small chamber whose walls were adorned with pictures of former members and found myself confronted by a committee representing sixty-four Coöp gent'men students, students who combine the profits of an education and employment. Twenty-seven of them were veterans of the armed forces, so I decided then and there that I'd better be good.

I immediately asked the one and only "Miss Maude" and her boys about the various activities of this year's class. It seemed that those Coöps did it again by selling two hundred sixty-eight athletic tickets, an all-time record. They also led in the Community Fund Drive, contributing sixty-two dollars to the worthy cause.

The fall social, entertaining 125 guests, was a huge success, as was the Coöps' Christmas party. April saw the presentation of the annual Coöp play, followed by another social in May. So you see life is not so dull for a working lad!

Inquiring further, I was told that probably the most important feature of this year was the Coöperative Class Reunion, the first held since the start of the war, with four hundred alumni of the class attending the gala affair at the City Armory.

Satisfied with my latest undertaking, I took my leave of the boys, who presented me with a parting gift of my favorite dish, food!

Coöperative Class

JUNIORS AND SENIORS

Veteran's Homeroom

First row: B. Gray, W. Griffen, P. Hales, R. Jones, C. Brown, J. Hemmeral, J. Pollock. Second row: B. McFarland, B. Ross, R. Smith, B. Suitt, J. Poe, B. Thompson, J. White. Third row: C. Hancock, L. Ribit, J. Coleman, E. Reams, B. Philpot, B. Harris. Standing: Mr. Shields.

Gingerly walking so as to avoid being stepped on by dancing couples, I wandered about and thoroughly enjoyed myself at the Student Veteran's dance given last December in the City Armory. The music for the occasion was furnished by Jack Fieldson and his orchestra.

This dance was sponsored by the Veteran's class, which, under the leadership of Mr. Shields, himself a veteran, has successfully completed its second year of work in Durham High School. This home room was formed at the request of the veterans who at that time were scattered throughout the many home rooms in the school.

Since I personally am not a veteran, I made myself as inconspicuous as possible at their regular weekly business meetings, and remained attentive to various speakers who were featured, and to their discussions of mutual problems. Several of my veteran friends graduated at mid-term, but the general enrollment included approximately thirty students, some classified as sophomores, some as juniors, and the rest as seniors.

Officers were elected both semester. The following were in office:

FIRST SEMESTER

Henry Godwin	President
David Matthews	Vice-President
Sherrill Smith	Secretary
Jimmy Poe	Treasurer
Frank Murphy	Sergeant-at-Arms
Bob Faucette	Chaplain
Lee Ribit	Reporter

SECOND SEMESTER

Jimmy Poe	President
Bobby Ross	Vice-President
Russell Jones	Secretary
Robert Smith	Treasurer
Bernice Philpott	Chaplain

Student Organization

CONSTITUTIONAL COMMITTEE—Seated: Mr. Cooke, Mrs. Richardson, Mary Maughan. Standing: Miss Wilson, Nick Galifianakis, Miss Williams, Buck Roberts, Mike Galifianakis.

Adviser: RUBY WILLIAMS

Came the revolution! Politically this has been an exciting year at Durham High: the discussion and ratification of a new constitution; the procedures involved in putting its provisions into effect; nominations, campaign speeches, and elections; the early success of new policies! I'm the proudest bulldog that ever lived as my pet scheme of government proves its worth in my school and becomes a model for other student governments in our state.

Under the competent direction of Buck Roberts, president, and Nick Galifianakis, vice-president, a school government which was more democratic and yet stronger was formed. Six committees—the house-and-grounds, point system, publicity, social, and traffic—were established for the purpose of cleaning the school grounds, registering activity points of all students, preparing programs for assemblies, publicizing, entertaining, and managing the traffic of the school respectively. This year's Student Council, consisting of the officers of the Student Body, presidents of the three classes, and chairmen of the committees, met once a week.

The Student Assembly, which provided for adequate representation of the Student Body, made up as it was of all home room presidents along with the members of the Student Council, met once a month.

I'll never, never forget that strenuous day when Nancy Harris stopped me in the halls, Mary Ann Clements immediately swept me into a waste basket, and Currie Mebane began to publicize this act. However, since J. B. O'Neal decided I didn't have enough points, I resigned myself sadly to obscurity.

Joint Publications

Ever since I found out that where interesting things happen, there also is Donald Helms, I've dogged his footsteps. Today "we" took this snap-shot of our advisers.

Though somewhat prejudiced in favor of the MESSENGER, I readily admit that the Hi-Rocket is as much an "English laboratory" and voice of the school as my own publication. It is a voice that speaks more often, for it keeps the student body abreast of the times in school affairs. The Hi-Rocket staff sniffs out news and prints it according to the journalistic principles learned in class. The MESSENGER's voice, however, speaks the last word. It annually presents a chronicle of the year's events that attempts to place all activities in positions proportionate to their importance. Which publication is better? I'm only a bulldog. Who am I to say?

Messenger

Tracking down the MESSENGER staff wasn't an easy thing to do. All were scattered here and there with pictures and write-ups.

I saw Mimi, dashing down the hall, and as I caught up, I heard her shout to the victim she had grabbed by the arm, "Where is my write-up?"

And I ran into J. B., with his arms full of pictures and his hands covered with glue, tracking down his assistants to see if they had found out who the first person on the third row in that picture is.

I shied away from Eleanor, because every time I saw her, she tried to paint my portrait. As I ducked into Miss Edwards' room to dodge her, I saw the smiling adviser conferring with Brantley and Sara about the slim, slim budget.

Yes, the budget was slim, and the hours were long and hard; but the staff enjoyed publishing this annual.

As for me, I was deeply honored by the opportunity to revisit my old "Alma Mater." and record my impressions of the truly great spirit evidenced everywhere in Durham High School.

Literary Staff of Messenger

How well I remembered barking over the honors won by the Hi-Rocket in past years—the medalist ratings won for ten years in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the Thomas Hume Cup for first place among school newspapers of North Carolina, won six times out of a possible ten. And I barked again at the success of the 1946-47 staff when I learned what they were up against.

Their first issue was delayed until they could find a printer who could publish the paper. Although willing, this company was handicapped by shortage of type, by the cost and scarcity of materials, by the lack of high quality paper. In fact, I found out that because of the shortage of workers, the editors were forced to do much of the actual work of printing.

The staff did meet their obligations to subscribers and advertisers, with the help of Miss Frances Briggs, who served as adviser during the first semester, in which Miss Herr was absent because of an eye infection.

Twelve delegates represented the Hi-Rocket at the C.S.P.A. convention in New York in March, gaining experience and knowledge from the trip to help them in carrying out the purpose of the Hi-Rocket: to publish school news and constructive, original student writing that meets the highest journalistic standards.

The local lodge of the Knights of Pythias offers, this year, as it plans to continue offering, a medal to the Senior boy on the staff who is judged most outstanding. Last year, before it was stipulated that the recipient be a boy, Fanchon Lewis, co-editor, won the award.

Athena Literary Society

Adviser: Maribelle R. Moore

Of course I have never met this Athena, but I hear she was the goddess of wisdom. No matter how wise she was, I'll bet she would be proud of the wit and wisdom expressed at the Athena society's meetings. As for me, although I poked my nose into a lot of clubs and societies this year, I enjoyed none of their activities more than the Athena society's initiation party. After what happened to the new members, I'm sure it was the goddess alone that brought them safely back to contribute to the year's work!

Instinctively, as I looked in on the Carmichael Society's meeting, I assumed my most pugnacious expression and adopted a more manly stride. This was a man's world!

After establishing their much discussed constitution, the boys have lived up to the purpose they had set—to establish literary ideals in the minds of its members. Their projects for self and school improvement have included helping actively in the Student Council's "clean-up" drive.

Adviser: MARGUERITE M. HERR

The Page Society stresses a spirit of loyalty and coöperation between its members, just as it did when I visited its meetings in my puppyhood. Unmistakable evidence of that spirit was the boys' great success in planning and carrying out their plans for the annual spring banquet. Indeed it was a true climax for a year's work well done.

At the end of the year—the very end—the Senior chosen as the one who has rendered the greatest service to the club and the school has his name engraved on the Page Cup which remains at the school to inspire future members.

"If there is anything better than a pretty girl," my grandpa used to say, "it is a pretty girl with brains." . . . But somehow I had my doubts until I wandered into a Cornelia Spencer meeting today. When I left I was ready to add: "If there is anything better than a pretty girl with brains, it is a lot of them!" There certainly are a lot of members of this society—so many that they are divided into three groups which, each in turn, are responsible for the programs.

Just as I was leaving, plans were being drawn up for one big social that is sure to live up to the great tradition of Spencer fun.

Southgate Literary Society

Adviser: Belle Hampton

I walked into room 212 and cocked my ears inquiringly. The girls present were speaking and writing like souls inspired. The new constitution was almost complete.

"What's in this constitution?" I asked.

"Too much to explain now," one girl answered, "but one outstanding thing it provides for, Butch, is a set of programs that will familiarize students with great literature. Our programs will be sprinkled with opportunities for developing student literary talent and poise."

They used to call them "blue stockings," but there was nothing blue in the scenery when I found myself in an O. Henry meeting one day—and all the young ladies were quite literary just the same. Their individual projects on creative writing, vocal expression, and literary appreciation should make O. Henry extremely proud of his namesake!

Playmakers Dramatics Club

Adviser: MARY ELIZABETH SUTTT HALL

Boy, was I a mess! To think that a job so well begun could ever turn out like this! The worst of it was that I had to take a BATH after it was over.

Here is the story. This morning, becoming interested in a curious-looking box that was on its way into Mrs. Hall's room, I trailed after its bearer. A shock awaited me. What was this, anyway? A school for beauticians? Hardly, for some of the "operators" were producing hags instead of beauties, and were adding hideous beards and age lines to normally handsome males.

Spotting my questioning, rather distressed look, Mrs. Hall explained that they were practicing the art of theatrical make-up. It seems that the Playmakers are specializing in this, now that the dramatics clubs are producing plays jointly. I watched with great enthusiasm then, and was soon offering my services as a guinea pig. That was my mistake, for by the time four artists, each with his own ideas, got through with me—well, I did break that mirror I fought with on the way out.

Mummers Dramatics Club

On my first visit to the Mummers I was denied entrance, for members were busy working on their constitution. But other attempts were quite successful, and I witnessed numerous entertaining and instructive programs. Everyone participated in various skits and readings during the year, and much about the background of drama was learned. You'd really be surprised to learn what goes on behind the scenes of a play.

The most fun of all though, was that cabin party given at Turnage's cabin last fall. A well-planned, clever program, led by the competent vice-president, made it one of the year's most enjoyable programs.

Thespian Dramatics Club

Adviser: MAUDE RATLEDGE OAKS

Today I woke up just rarin' to express myself! I hopped off that extra-soft cushion I found in a chair—you know, the one they used in the play last night!—and felt an almost irresistible urge to bark and cut a caper, even at my advanced age! Right then I couldn't let myself go, because the men had just come after the furniture. I didn't want to be too conspicuous!

When I had controlled myself about as long as was eaninely possible, I luckily happened upon a group that encouraged dramatic self-expression. Did I have a wonderful time! The Thespians stress individual talent by presenting comedy, mystery, and drama on the high school stage. My individual talent blossomed forth in all its glory today when the flattering encouragement of the members and their adviser started me off and kept me going. I had gone through all my tricks and started off on my favorite imitation of Rin Tin Tin before the bell rang. I felt good! After seeing what they could do in their show of student talent last night, their approval of my talent made me puff out my chest with pride.

Mimics Dramatics Club

OFFICERS—L. Snipes, I. Hall, F. Biggs, K. Bullock, E. Stone.

Adviser: NATALIE GREEN

You know, folks, I'm really going "hog-wild"—I mean "dog-wild"—over dramatics since I started sticking my ugly nose into other people's club business. Now this club has inspired me with an overwhelming desire to blossom forth into a canine version of Paul Green! I can see me now. There I stand in the midst of thundering applause and cries of "Author! Author!" Isn't that a beautiful picture?

They did it, these Mimics. You'll want to know their officers.

Adviser: EDWARD W. BELL

'Til my sense of humor diluted my fury to the saturation point, my favorite project for the year was to find occasion to tie at least one Phy-Chem member to a kite string during a good snappy electrical storm! There I was, merely showing my intellectual interest in the proceedings, when the young scientist in question, feigning hospitality, chunked me a piece of carbon dioxide snow. How could I know he wasn't making ice cream! Ha!

Current Events Club

Adviser: BELLE C. GHOLSON

Answering my scratches on the door of room 129, Monitor Carroll Brooks admitted me to a meeting of "Ma" Gholson's Current Events Club. It seems I was just in time, for as I walked in President Tommy Sneed was rising to call the meeting to order.

Well, here was something new! When, after the reading of the minutes, Charles Dilts began calling the roll, I was startled to see each member rise, face the group and proceed to tell a current event. Gee, by the time he finished calling the roll, I felt like an authority on current history . . . but that wasn't all. Guy Fornes followed with a timely and interesting program This club evidently keeps it professed aim clearly in mind—the aim of keeping up with world happenings in all fields, and of promoting the art of speech-making and debating.

The meeting adjourned, all fifty members scrambled over me into the hall on their way to classes, obviously intent upon taking a leading part in the current events of Durham High School.

Adviser: Louise Dobson

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations—teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Even in the life of a bulldog, there are times when one wants to think seriously and wholesomely about life. That's why I have been attending a meeting of the Bible Club.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Louise Dobson, the Bible Club used "Seek ye first the Kingdom" as the theme for the year. Many worthwhile projects such as sending clothing abroad to needy countries, visiting welfare homes throughout the city, helping to make life more cheerful for less fortunate families, and furthering God's kingdom on earth, kept the members constantly alert.

I believe the Bible Club is a step forward in making Durham High a better school with a better spirit.

Future Homemakers of America

Adviser: FRANCES E. WOOLWORTH

Those future homemakers were really busy girls this year, carrying out their varied activities. Helping the student organization committees, participating in the World Christmas Festival, and aiding the Salvation Army were among the many projects that spotlighted the year.

The name of the club suggests its motto, "The homes of tomorrow are in the hands of the youth of today." All programs were based on that theme.

Fortunately, and it wasn't just a matter of luck, I arrived at the cottage in time for one of those delightful socials that the future homemakers give themselves every month. How I'd love another one of those cookies! Those girls know the way to a dog's heart, too!

Future Business Leaders of America

OFFICERS—M. Liles, P. Lee, A. Upchurch, C. Hood, P. Prince.

Advisers: RUTH CORDLE and JOHN DEEDS

Finding the need to talk business, I paid a visit to the Future Business Leaders of America, a branch of the national organization of the same name. During their meeting, I sniffed about and found that the members had selected an interesting project for the year. Their purpose was to find out the positions now held by former commercial graduates of Durham High School. This information will prove helpful to them when business employers call for workmen.

Durham High is the only high school in North Carolina to have a chapter of this national organization. There are three grades of active membership, based upon service and achievement: helper, supervisor and leader.

Art Club

Adviser: Elsie Smith

I waddled up three flights of steps to that third floor room, 304, where the fifteen members of the Art Club and their adviser, Miss Elsie Smith, hold their bi-monthly meetings. I was doggone relieved to find them there, since during the year they sometimes went out on special sketching trips, visits to art exhibits, and to lectures.

For once, these talented students were not busy on some community project, such as the window display they made for Eckerd's drug store window during the Community Fund Drive. They graciously explained that in most of their "home meetings" they either heard guest speakers, saw educational "arty" movies or slides, or discussed or experimented on some phase of their work.

Despite their welcome, a bulldog feels awkward in the midst of paint jars and statuettes and India ink, so I did not remain to shoot the bull, but ambled on.

I pricked up my ears and bit myself. Yes, I was still in Durham High School and not back in dog heaven. This must be an earthly and not a seraphic chorus that was sending those delightful little chills down my back to the tip of my stubby tail!

Following the sound, I waddled faster down the hall and slipped unobtrusively into th auditorium. Happy and unnoticed I remained, until I became so enraptured that I began to croon during the "Hallelujah Chorus." The "professor" was at first greatly distressed by what seemed the hopeless degeneration of his chorus's tone and pitch, but at last he recognized me. Probably too relieved to be angry, he smiled weakly and agreed to let me stay if I'd let the students do the singing.

After rehearsal I stopped two pretty little girls to ask about the performances scheduled for this popular musical club.

"This is another busy year for us singers," one explained in a melodious alto voice. "We've already sung for the students at activity period and for several civic clubs at their luncheon meetings. There will be more of that. Right now we are practicing for our Christmas concert next Wednesday night. Be sure to come, Butch."

"We sang beautifully at Thanksgiving, too. It's a shame you missed hearing us!" the soprano chimed in. "Since you appreciate our music so much, maybe we'll let you go along when we go travelling this spring. We plan to sing in Greensboro, and possibly even in Florida! Pack your bag."

Woof, WOOF! You angels!

What are those strange sounds emanating from Room 214? Curiosity getting the best of caution, I investigated and found such queer goings-on that I decided the Latin Club must be in session. For, front and center, facing the group, were three creatures in long white robes, before an improvised altar, upon which they were apparently sacrificing something to their gods, and chanting in Latin. I noticed on the walls pictures of gods, goddesses, myths, statues of famous ancient personages and scenes from the Far-away and Long-ago; also a large Roman calendar, charts of the Latin language and other interesting things. This glimpse into another age so fascinated me that I lingered on, and heard described a day in the life of a Roman family, a peasant's hut, a nobleman's palace, a country villa, a great battle, an afternoon at the Circus Maximus, and the life of a Vestal Virgin.

"Stop wagging your tail! Sit up straight! Watch the bone! Hold it!" These were the orders that were barked at me as I sat nervously facing the thirty-odd amateur photographers of the Camera Club. "That is all, now," they said at last, and I slid perspiring from the stool to a relatively inconspicuous place in the room.

While cooling off, I learned a few things about this organization of picture snappers. They told me that this club's activities include several field trips, a hayride in December, and a social in May. Not the least of their projects (certainly not in the opinion of my friends of the MESSENGER staff) is that of providing interesting snapshots for the annual. This is a project, often suggested, that has been effectively squelched for the last few years by the scarcity of photographic materials. This time maybe they're barking up the right tree!

Now here's a group after my own heart, for its members are, like me, lovers of all that Nature calls her own.

Yes, I was right on hand this afternoon when the enthusiastic members and their adviser set off on their combination field trip and picnic. In the highest possible spirits I bounded merrily after first one and then another investigator as he examined wild flowers, trees, mosses, birds' nests, caterpillars, and elusive chipmunks. Occasionally I took off on little explorations of my own, but the tantalizing scent of those bags of food kept me from wandering far.

Now that I've put you into the mood to appreciate this club's activities, I'd like to tell you about the programs that kept me entranced during the regular meetings. Sometimes "Professor Quiz" appeared, eager to test our nature lovers on botanical and zoological subjects. Sometimes informed students gave reports. One series of these reports concerned astronomy, a subject that soon had us all "star-gazing." All this I enjoyed, but my favorite program concerned the psychoanalysis of dreams—a subject that I mean to pursue further. I'm working on an interesting dream now—the one in which I taught human beings how to sit up and beg. I'll let you know if I finish interpreting it.

"Parlez-vous Français" greeted me as I joined the members of the French Club for one of their meetings, and I promptly responded with a cheery "Howdy." This "Cercle Français" was formed to promote the French language and to help members learn conversational French. During the programs presented at Christmas time, carols were sung in French and proverbs at other times were also recited in the romantic language.

Plans for a social centering around the colorful theme of French customs were at this meeting approaching completion, but somehow, try as I might, I couldn't quite get the gist of them. It wasn't long before I received an invitation to attend, but because I couldn't read the date and time specified, I came within an ace of missing one of the treats of my life! I shall always be grateful to J. B. O'Neal, the Messenger photography editor, for translating it for me.

Today I learned something else new. Those efficient library assistants I watched with admiration during my investigation of the Library Department are members of one of the so-called "miscellaneous clubs" that meet twice a month.

Their purpose, to create more interest among students and teachers in the library as a place of recreational reading as well as that of required reading, they carry out by making interesting posters and displays, by keeping flowers to give a cheery atmosphere, and by managing efficiently their routine duties—circulating and shelving books, checking mail and overdue books, typing, filing, and preparing new books for the shelves.

Ambling down the basement hall, I heard strange noises coming from the Spanish room. Could that be Spanish they were speaking?

I entered and found what it was. That Spanish dog in dog heaven had tried to teach me to understand his language, but it's sad but true: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks." However, the senoritas and senores graciously consented to speak English so that I might understand what was going on. They were discussing their accomplishments and future plans for the year.

Programs have dealt with Spanish customs and habits and inspired further interest in Spanish. A fall social was held, and a banquet complete with tortillas will be given in the spring. Gosh, I hope I'll be there!

One Monday night when I decided to visit the Hi-Y Club, their purpose, "To create and maintain throughout the school and community, high standards in Christian character," thrilled me to the tail! The fifty members led by Adviser A. S. Holt and its capable officers plan to continue living up to the purpose which has been carried out so well in the Hi-Y clubs of other years.

The members are following many good traditions by visiting an assigned church every three weeks, giving a basket of food every month to some needy person, and collecting money for the Empty Stocking Fund. Three appointed delegates attended the Hi-Y Conference in Wilson. Plans for the organization of a Tri-Hi-Y for girls have been made, and also for a program which is to be presented in the school auditorium to acquaint others with the worthy purpose.

Everyone, including me, is awaiting the annual Hi-Y Social, for good food and good entertainment is always present.

This year, as in previous years, girls of Durham High were given a chance to become members of the Junior Auxiliary of the Durham Needlework Guild by contributing garments or money to be given to underprivileged children of Durham. Although the guild was not organized until late, because of Miss Herr's absence, around 400 garments were collected and eight dollars for the shoe fund. Under the leadership of Ann Buchanan and 27 directors, 175 girls participated.

The collection was exhibited at the Washington Duke Hotel with the display of the entire guild of Durham.

I attended the display, but when one of the directors decided to try a nightie on me to check its size, I made a hasty departure.

Practiee sessions, pep rallies, parades, stirring band music, yes—that's football at Durham High. I can vividly reeall the thrilling games and the way my barking worked up to a high pitch at crueial points in the game. But wait—let me tell you of this year's achievements on the gridiron.

Although losing the initial eneounters, my Bulldog gridmen gained momentum as the season advanced and finished with a satisfaetory reeord. Improvement beeame evident when the gridders crushed the New Bern opponents and then edged out a highly favored Wilson aggregation.

The journey to Miami resulted in a loss to the Miami High team; but undaunted, we bulldogs returned to give the finest performance of the season in tying Wilmington's powerful eleven 6 to 6.

A victory over Goldsboro terminated the '46 campaign and also finished the high school football eareers of H. Bullock, B. Ross, A. Spain, C. Brooks, M. Taylor, D. Carden, B. Gray, J. White, B. Mangum, and D. Elkins.

A highlight of the season was the invitation extended to Co-Captains Bullock and Ross to play in the annual Shrine Bowl football elassic.

Yea, Bulldogs! I'm proud of my breed.

For the first time in nine years, my Durham High basketballers failed to win the Eastern Conference Championship. Weakened decidedly by the sale (graduation) of my best pups who were State Champions last year, Coach P. G. Sykes had to rely mainly on newcomers and last year's reserves to carry the burden of defending the title. The Durham Bulldogs, though green and inexperienced, managed to win their share of the games and served notice that next year's quintet will be strong and aggressive.

Gene Brooks, lanky center, received the honor of being named to the All Conference Team.

Coach P. G. Sykes again held the leash when we began to keep the ball from the ground on our side of the net. I did not have to swallow a single ball in our first two matches with Burlington and Rocky Mount . . . and we overwhelmed the pups. The return fights and the State Meet are yet ahead of me, but I have no fears as to the final results. I'll add what scores I can before they put that muzzle on me down at the printer's.

Bow, Wow, Wow! We Bulldogs did ourselves proud during this spring's campaign. We are supposed to be good at grabbing a fellow's leg and holding tight until it thunders, but this time we proved that we can run, too! Master C. R. Baucom (coach) had one of the best balanced packs in many years, and believe me, we proved that we could move down the cinder path like lightning. We trounced Charlotte High soundly and gave a good account of ourselves in the Carolina relays and in the Penn relays held in Philadelphia.

In addition to lettermen Henry Bullock, Albert Spain, Leroy McLeod, Pete Shankle, Bobby Byrd, Bill Newman, Bobby House, and Billy Melvin, the point winners on this year's squad were: Bobby Poe, Gene Brooks, Ed McDonald, Nick Galifianakis, Mike Galifianakis, Allen Sligh, Julian Dennis, Russell Rogers, Duncan Nelson, Donald Rhodes, Wade Copeland, W. B. Pate, Jack Hardy, Jack Stallings, and Frank Warren.

SCHEDULE, 1946-1947

Durham 86—Charlotte High 31.

Carolina Relays, Chapel Hill, N. C.—Won mile, medley, and 440 relays. Placed in shot put and javelin.

Penn Relays, Philadelphia, Pa.—Took fourth place in mile relays. Took ninth place in medley relay. Took sixth place in 440 relay.

Eastern Conference, Durham, N. C.—Won.

State Meet, Chapel Hill, N. C.—Won.

C-Club Meet, Washington, D. C.—2.4 in 880. Henry Bullock broke record.

Baseball

When the familiar call of "Play ball" was shouted on the Durham High diamond, it was with a spirit of revenge that the boys set out to play their games. Revenge for last year's season when they won only one game. Under a new coach, Kelley Mote, and with three or four promising pitchers in Julius Moore, Buddy Colvard, and Bruce Holt, not to mention a host of returning lettermen from the 1946 nine, the Durham High baseball men have fared very well. The squad closed the season with five wins and six defeats, and held fourth place in the Eastern Conference.

SCHEDULE, 1947

Durham	7-10	Goldsboro
Durham	11- 3	Rocky Mount
Durham	5-16	Wilmington
Durham	12- 1	Goldsboro
Durham	13-20	Raleigh
Durham	9- 3	Rocky Mount

Golf

Under the leadership of my new golf coach, Grady Liles, and Captain David Reed, the veteran Durham High team produced additional honors for the Bulldogs. Last year's letteremen, David Reed, Philbert Green, and Dante Germino, along with this year's lettermen, Noble Arnold, and Vernon Suitt, were to be a winning combination. My tongue is hanging out, but I am one happy bulldog after an exciting season of successful "caddying." The Durham linksmen can really hit those balls!

SCHEDULE, 1946-1947

Durham	15 -3	Raleigh
Durham	16 -2	Raleigh
Durham	9½-8½	Greensboro
Durham	12 -6	Greensboro

State Meet: 8th place.

Carolina's Schoolboy Meet: 4th place, at Greenville, S. C.

David Reed was the runner-up for individual honors.

Tennis

This tennis game is really a hard sport for which to find a suitable partner; none of the stray dogs around here were even interested. But the girls and boys had no difficulty in this matter for each gym period found all the courts filled with the energetic swatters. This sport was enjoyed in the spring and fall, but was abandoned during the winter. No tennis team of the girls was formed, but some of the participants are really of the calibre of fine tennis players.

Paddle Tennis

Ping pong, ping pong, went those paddles, and did I get a crick in my neck watching those balls whizz by. Ouch! One missed! Paddle tennis was enjoyed by the girls' gym classes in many of their daily gym periods. Although the marked-off courts in the gym were usually used for other purposes, bringing interference into this sport, a few days were spent whenever possible in the learning of the rules of the game. The players who enjoyed participating in this game, the kin of tennis, played on the courts and didn't mind my watching them at all—or rather, they said they didn't.

Swimming

And naturally I went to the swimming pool to take my bath—incidentally, there hasn't been any swimming in the pool since. Swimming was enjoyed by many girls during the first of the year, but when complications arose, the sport had to be discontinued until the pool was fixed. Many more are expected to take part in the sport of swimming next year.

Ah! to be a member of that exclusive club! They tell me membership is restricted to those lucky feminine sportsters who have scraped up two hundred points of hard athletic work. I suppose that lets me out, but I'll bet it's worth every hour spent practicing basketball, volleyball, or maybe that swimming stroke.

At the moment I'm doing some first class boot-licking. Yes, I'm bidding for an invitation to that annual week-end camping trip to Crabtree Creek. The girls are busily making plans for it right now. Believe me, that little trip into the wilds is one of the club's best drawing cards. Why, everyone in school envies the lucky camper who returns with a glowing sun tan on that sunny Monday in May! So you, too, can be a lobster! Hmm, come to think of it, perhaps a red dog wouldn't be nearly so attractive as I thought!

Ha! Red or green, who cares? They are great girls, and wonderful company.

Girls' Athletic Association

First row: A. Fowler, B. Smith, C. Ferrell, A. Lashley, B. Forbus, C. Collins, M. Vassar, P. Olive, L. Carter, L. Thornburg, M. Bryant, P. Williams, A. Liberman, C. Suggs, F. Taylor. Second row: S. O'Briant, M. Pollander, J. Andrews, C. Davis, B. Lucas, M. J. Lockhart, K. Bullock, S. Christmas, J. Carlton, V. Cobb, K. Ribbet, L. Townsend, M. Compton. Third row: M. R. Hux, B. M. Knight, P. Fowler.

Adviser: Nell S. Leitner

The morning bulletin having announced a Girls' Athletic Association meeting today, I think I'll make a little journey to the gymnasium and inspect the material for girls' athletics this year. Umm! With volleyball, basketball, softball, swimming, and paddle tennis, the girls promise to hold our close attention. With the Girls' Athletic Association and Girls' Monogram Club as goals, the girls of Durham High School work hard to earn the number of points required to become members.

At the G.A.A. meetings, members discuss new sports' rules, dance, or practice whatever sport happens to be in season. Much fun and needed practice is had by the girls who have proved themselves good enough to become full-fledged members, for their activities are not limited to regular meetings, but often continue after school. This afternoon, for instance, I'm going to referee a little game of basketball for them. For each point scored, I'll bark; for each point lost, I'll growl.

Officers—First row: B. M. Knight, C. Collins, S. Christmas. Second row: P. Fowler, B. Smith, B. Edwards.

Cheerleaders

"Come on D. H. S."—the cheerleaders yelled, and I was right there with them.

The leader, Bobby House, definitely won my respect when he allowed me to run on the football field during the halves.

The cheerleaders rooted at almost every game, even following the teams to various towns. Though our teams were excellent and had "what it takes," our cheerleaders helped to spur them on and win glory for D. H. S.

Durham High School Band

Louise Elliott, Student Director

Crash! Bang! Boom! What's coming? Is it another war? Ducking my tail (well—anyway, what's left of it) between my legs, I ran into the crowd standing along the street, and peered out from between two slightly bowed legs at the huge commotion coming down the street. First came four boys carrying flags that fluttered in the breeze. Then six gorgeous majorettes strutted by, high-stepping it to the rhythm of a snappy march. After the girls, came row after row of people in uniforms carrying all kinds of bright, shiny instruments. Right up in front of all this splendor, a boy was prancing and twirling a big stick.

Having been out of touch with developments at the old school during my years in dog heaven, I was indeed filled with wonder, so I turned to a little fox terrier at my side for information. This is what I learned:

That wonderful parade was the Durham High School Band. Under the direction of Mr. Lewis Enloe, this active group carried quite a heavy schedule during 1946-47. Besides being in parades, the musicians played at rallies, helped create interest in the Community Fund drive, participated in contests and clinics, prformed intricate maneuvers at the football games, and gave thrilling concerts on different occasions. The band was really the greatest morale builder in the school.

Band Officers

D. Pickard, F. Stafford, F. Whitaker, J. Hilbert, J. Heldman, J. Chalmers, B. Andrews, V. Draughan, T. Wagner.

Under a capable staff of officers, the band handled all disciplinary matters and kept the appearance and performance of the musicians on a very high standard.

Band Corporals

First row: B. Thomas, W. Copeland, V. deVyver, D. Jones, J. Kennedy. Second row: T. Haddon, J. Holbrook, D. Helms, S. Adcock, P. Carswell.

Behind closed doors, hours of hard work, practice, and coöperation were spent in preparation for successful public appearances. Durham High might well be proud of her 1946-47 band.

Yes, from where this bulldog sees it, if I had my high school life to live over, I would join the band!

The band plays it and struts it; the students sing it, and I . . . and I HOWL it!

"We are here, dear Durham High,
To laud your glories to the sky!
Sons and daughters true,
And we'll stand by you!
We will wave our banners gay
As we go marching on our way.
For with you our Mother dear
We'll never fail, never fail.
Hip, hip, hurray!"

In Appreciation

William Powell Twaddell

I, Butch Bulldog, speaking for myself, for an appreciative MESSENGER Staff, and for all the music lovers of Durham High School, pause here to pay tribute to William Powell Twaddell who has served his art and inspired his students since 1922 when he first became Director of Music in the city schools.

There are many who say that in those twenty-five years, through his work in school and in the community, he has done more than any other person to develop in the citizens of Durham an appreciation for great music. His pupils who through the years have achieved success are grateful for the training he gave, for his encouragement, and for his help and direction when they needed it most. Some of his famous pupils are Lucille Browning of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Euticus Renn of the Westminster Choir, and M. T. Cousins of the National Symphony Orchestra. There are thousands more who, without fame and without extraordinary talent, are no less grateful for his part in adding to their own enduring happiness.

Hats off, Durham High! Hats off, Durham, to a great man! We salute you!
